“ Skill is a rare commodity ”

INVEST INTELLIGENTLY

We carefully select our team of next-generation asset managers through a rigorous screening process, with a particular focus on their level of skill and approach to risk.

How we measure skill

Truly skilled managers stick to their convictions. They're able to see opportunities in the market that allow them to extract outperformance sustainably – based on a foundation of research, teamwork, and the ability to learn continuously.

A skilled next-generation asset manager is motivated, experienced, and tenacious, and, most importantly, they are willing to go the extra mile to find a sustainable competitive advantage that enables them to outperform their benchmark without taking on unnecessary amounts of risk.

How we measure risk

While a good risk rating is an important factor, it's imperative that we feel comfortable with the manager in question's overall approach.

That's why we look for asset managers with a stable background, in terms of ownership and assets under management growth. We also check if their business and investment interests align with the business, and whether admin and compliance functions support scalability, enabling them to become a next-generation asset manager.

AMPLIFY AND THE GOOD WORK FOUNDATION

South Africa has an alarmingly high youth unemployment rate. It's an issue that matters and demands impact.

This is why we partner directly with the Good Work Foundation, contributing to its education initiatives that look to deliver 21st-century digital learning opportunities which create access, opportunity and employability for rural and marginalised communities.

AMPLIFY AND THE GOOD WORK FOUNDATION

Education and Employment

Through our contribution, we are able to provide bursaries to young community members around the Greater Kruger National Park, enabling them to grow real, tangible skills that can help them pursue career and employment opportunities.

Amplifying the Technology Industry

One such opportunity is in the IT field through the foundation's ICT Academy, which offers a MICT certified one-year certificate that provides a variety of valuable, real-world skills in one of today's fastest-growing industries.

Amplifying the Tourism and Hospitality Industry

Another such opportunity is in hospitality through the foundation's Travel and Tourism Academy, which offers CATHSETA certified courses that connect young rural South Africans with significant opportunities in the growing industry of wildlife tourism.

AMPLIFY AND SANPARKS

Environmental crime is threatening the survival of key species, causing uncontrollable damage to natural habitats and is increasingly compromising community safety. To help combat this, Amplify has partnered with Environmental Crime Investigation (ECI) Unit, a specialist unit whose specific focus is on rhino-related safety in the greater Kruger National area, as well as abalone and tourist-related safety in the Cape region.

Conservation

Preserving our environment for future generations is extremely important to us. We support conservation initiatives that focus on protecting and saving wildlife and uplifting the communities living alongside these conservation areas.

Saving our Rhinos

Decimated by poaching and nearing extinction, the rhino is a symbol of the urgent and important need for wildlife conservation. This is why we provide financial support to the SANParks' ECI unit to actively monitor, protect and secure the rhino population.
